SPIRITUAL GIFTS

Administration The gift of administration is the Spirit-given ability to organize people, resources, and plans so that ministry actually happens.

Apostleship The gift of apostleship is the Spirit-given ability to start new works — pioneering churches, ministries, and gospel outposts where nothing exists yet.

Craftsmanship The gift of craftsmanship is the Spirit-given ability to design and build with your hands for the glory of God — wood, metal, fabric, paint, pixels, and stages.

Discernment The gift of discernment is the Spirit-given ability to distinguish truth from error and the genuine from the counterfeit — in teaching, in motives, and in spiritual influences.

Evangelism The gift of evangelism is the Spirit-given ability to share the gospel with unbelievers in a way that moves them toward faith in Jesus.

Exhortation The gift of exhortation is the Spirit-given ability to come alongside people and move them forward — comforting the discouraged, challenging the stuck, and calling out what God is doing in someone before they can see it themselves.

Faith The gift of faith is the Spirit-given ability to trust God for what looks impossible — and to steady everyone else while He does it.

Giving The gift of giving is the Spirit-given ability to contribute money and resources to God's work with unusual generosity, wisdom, and joy.

Healing The gift of healing is the Spirit-given ability to be God's instrument of restoration in another person's body, mind, or spirit — most often through prayer.

Helps The gift of helps is the Spirit-given ability to free other people for their ministry by taking real work off their plate.

Hospitality The gift of hospitality is the Spirit-given ability to make people feel genuinely welcomed, safe, and at home — strangers included.

Intercession The gift of intercession is the Spirit-given ability to pray for others — persistently, specifically, and with unusual burden and effect.

Knowledge The gift of knowledge is the Spirit-given ability to learn, retain, and organize the truths of God's Word — and to bring the right truth to bear at the right moment.

Leadership The gift of leadership is the Spirit-given ability to set direction for God's people and move them toward it together — with zeal, Scripture says.

Mercy The gift of mercy is the Spirit-given ability to feel the pain of hurting people and move toward them with practical, cheerful compassion.

Miracles The gift of miracles is the Spirit-given ability to be God's instrument for works of power that go beyond natural explanation — interventions that authenticate the gospel and awaken faith.

Missionary The missionary gift is the Spirit-given ability to minister effectively across cultures — to leave what's familiar, love what's foreign, and make the gospel at home in a culture not your own.

Music The gift of music is the Spirit-given ability to lead God's people toward Him through song and skillful playing — using melody to teach, unite, and lift the church's heart.

Service The gift of service is the Spirit-given ability to see practical needs and joyfully meet them — the ministry of stacked chairs, filled coffee urns, and jobs done before anyone asked.

Prophecy The gift of prophecy is the Spirit-given ability to declare God's truth with timeliness and power — speaking to people, as Paul defines it, "for their upbuilding and encouragement and consolation.

Shepherding The gift of shepherding is the Spirit-given ability to care for a group of believers over time — feeding, protecting, guiding, and going after the one who wanders.

Teaching The gift of teaching is the Spirit-given ability to explain God's Word so clearly that people understand it, believe it, and live it.

Tongues & Interpretation The gift of tongues is the Spirit-given ability to pray or speak in a language the speaker hasn't learned; the gift of interpretation makes that speech intelligible, so the church is built up.

Wisdom The gift of wisdom is the Spirit-given ability to apply God's truth to real situations — knowing not just what's true, but what to do.
